01.00 The Covered Bridge

The Covered Bridge is an adventure designed for a party of four to six characters of 4th to 8th level. Any character classes work in this adventure, but the difficulty will vary depending on those classes. Many of the opponents the characters may fight require magic weapons to strike you may want to either include additional magic weapons to the treasure listed, or save this adventure until the characters have magic weapons of their own. The adventure is concerned with solving the centuries-old murder of a historic hero. Within the adventure, the characters are caught up in the haunted memories of the ghostly knight and help him to accomplish his heroic deeds. While doing so, the party becomes familiar with his world and the murder suspects, picking up clues to their motivations and actions along the way. At the end of the adventure, an enraged spirit confronts the characters and demands that they name his killer. If they can do so, they are richly rewarded, both in treasure and the knowledge that they let a good man finally find rest. If they fail, they must face the chilling wrath of the deathless phantom.

The adventure occurs in a little-travelled valley off the main roads that was once the prosperous fief of the Loga family. It fell into ruin and abandonment long ago and has since become a part of another lord's larger domain, though it remains uninhabited, its fields fallow. Of the few travelers it sees, many of them tend to disappear mysteriously (no doubt, attributed to bandits or wild animals), so it is even more desolate as a result. If you are playing this as part of the Lost Lands campaign setting by King of the Hill, then Seymere Valley lies north of Mains on the western fringe of the Kingdom of Fovere, in the rolling ground where the Elderwood meets the Old Fens. The old road once provided a means of travel between Mains and distant Peneth in the Grand Duchy of Rembe but has long since fallen out of regular use.

01.01 Adventure Background

Some four hundred years ago, a heroic knight by the name of Varral et-Casan was poisoned, badly murdered by someone very close to him. The horrendous betrayal left Sir Varral's potent spirit unable to travel to its reward and find eternal rest. Worse still, Sir Varral's spectre does not even know the identity of the murderer; it only knows that its hunger for vengeance must be sated.

To that end, the spectre of Sir Varral now haunts a covered bridge in the Seymere Valley. On occasion, it draws people into the memories of its misty past in the hopes that they might uncover the truth behind its murder and bring his killer to light. Though hundreds of hapless people have been drawn into the shade's desperate scheme over the long years, unscathed the truth. For their failure, they suffer ultimate penalty: the spectre of Varral et-Casan then carved another notch into the bridge, are only the latest in a long line of the spectre's victims.

● In the Time of Varral et-Casan
